THE AD AND THE MAN

He saw an ad from day to day
And muttered: I defy it!
Their stuff may be just what they say
But I'm not going to buy it.

As time wore on he made remarks
It would not do to mention,
For he was mad because that ad
Was forced on his attention.

But in a week or two, or three,
He said: There's no denying
The way that ad gets hold of me—
The stuff may be worth trying.

For just about a fortnight more
He dared more words to him,
And then the ad completely had
Aroused the spender in him.

Next day he drifted in a store
And quietly expended
A few big iron dollars for
The stuff the ad commended.

He found it filled a long-felt need:
Its excellence surprised him,
And now he's glad because the ad
So deftly hypnotized him.

Prospectors Going North To Seek Lost Gold In Old River Bed

Somewhere in the big land of the Peace River, blessed by a line drawn from Fort St. John to the mouth of the Battle River, is an old river bed and in the Peace country, it is said, is located this ancient waterway prospectors are outfitting in Edmonton. Some have already gone in, including Jack Turner, late of the Upper Peace, and a number are preparing their packs for the journey. Several men from the gold fields of Alaska have reached Edmonton within the past few days, and the report of the mystic El Dorado north of the Peace have recalled their eyes, they also are en route to try their luck in the country north of the Clear Hills.

This minor stampede is the direct result of a story circulated amongst the old miners of the north country, the truth of which will doubtless be solved during the coming season. Here is the tale. Some years ago an Indian coming into Fort St. John from the country to the northeast of the port picked up a fair sized gold nugget which he discovered in the southern portion of the Peace River. Following this, he was joined by a white man, who made Fort St. John his rendezvous, came in to the Port with a quantity of coarse gold which he had obtained from streams in a similar direction to that from which the Indian hailed.

Thereafter the old fellow gave up trapping and lived the rest of his life in care-free idleness, but he never forgot his supplies of necessary raw low, he hitched his dogs to his sled and disappeared. In a few days was back again with a fresh supply of gold.

This continued for a number of years, but fate overtook the old man one day his body was found in the trail frozen stiff. He still has a large credit account in the books of the H.B.C.

It is said by the northern that the only time when gold was available was when there was a heavy fall of snow, with which the old fellow apparently washed his mineral, when he had melted the white blanket into water. From an analysis of the circumstances generally, it is thought that the place from which the gold was taken was some old river bed, where the Peace once flowed, and whether the story is correct or not remains to be proved. Prospectors, however, are putting up good money to test the truth of the tale, that the precious metal does exist somewhere in the north of Clear Hills in large quantities. Many men have prospectors in the country previously, in the endeavor to locate the old man's secret which died with him, but so far without success.

Miners possessing technical knowledge, claim that there is undoubtedly gold in paying quantities along the Peace, colors can be obtained in many places but not in sufficient quantity to provide pay dirt.

It is stated by an old H.B.C. man from the region of the Upper Peace that during the rush to the Klondike that two men washing on the river found a bar from which they took a quantity of gold. They went no further north, but returned to Winnipeg, with the intention of exploiting their find.

When they finally returned to the Peace country, they were unable to locate the bar from which the gold had been obtained, and it is thought that a title from a cut had been on the other side of the river lodged in the stream, and deflecting the current, caused the bar on which they had been working to be carried out to the flood water.

The government party under Engineer Lynch which is to put down "the Indians along the Upper Peace" summer is being eagerly watched by prospectors, and it is stated that a number of the latter are going north to see for themselves the result of these operations, as amongst prospectors the theory is general that gold exists in large quantities on the upper reaches of the big river.

A Plymouth Rock hen, owned by Mrs. Laporte, of Summerside, has entered the field as competitor for the honor of laying the largest egg. Canadians As Empire Builders

Playing Important Part In Development of British West Africa

Canadians are playing an important part in the development of British West Africa. Canada, Major-General Guggisberg, is governor of the Gold Coast. General Guggisberg is a native of Oakville, Ont., and served with distinction in the British army during the war. It was Lloyd Hargrave, as head of the Canadian mission in London, who brought Gen. Guggisberg and Major-General Stewart, of railway fame, together. As a result, Gen. Stewart, who was commander of transportation in France, has been awarded a contract for the construction of a great modern harbor at Tagorri, the chief port of the district, and for the building of thousands of miles of railways to various portions of this part of Africa. The work will take time, but in six years to complete and already some 30 engineers, construction superintendents and physicians, nearly all Canadians associated with Gen. Stewart, are en route for Tagorri. The Gold Coast is said to be one of the richest portions of Africa, with great manganese from which, in the future, steel, gold, oil, etc.—Lloyd Free Press.

Negress Wins Big Suit

Ownership of Rich Oil Lands Decided In Her Favor.

Lillie Taylor is probably the wealthiest negro woman in the United States as a result of a decision handed down in the state supreme court of Louisiana, decreeing her to be the rightful owner of a big tract of land in the southern section of the Gulf, near New Orleans, enormously rich in oil and gas deposits, and the value of which runs into the millions.

The question of her ownership hinged on whether or not an illegitimate child can inherit from its parents, article 238 of the civil code declaring that illegitimate children "belong to no family and have no relatives." During years that the suit was pending in the courts the value of the land and its products greatly grew up into the millions, until now, when Lillie Taylor has finally been declared the owner of the land, the oil on it and of the oil in tanks and pipes that have taken it from the land, it is estimated at a fabulous sum.

It is reported that attorneys for Lillie Taylor are to receive a fee of upward of $400,000 for their services.

Captain Saves Ship

Steam Siren Used As Last Resort

Capt. Avery, of the Ward Line Esperanza, reports that between Formosa, Yucatan, and Savannah, a tug, the Esperanza, looked sighted a waterspout a mile high, several miles astern of the boat, but rapidly overhauling the ship. Capt. Avery tried to escape it but when it engaged the ship, for two hours this went on, the stout always one turn astern of the Esperanza.

At last the resourceful skipper brought himself to the steam siren and blew a blast at full boiler pressure, and presto, the air vibration caused by the whistle jiggled the spout so severely that it took a dead fall into the sea and the ship was saved.

The Water Spider

A correspondent describes a peculiar spider that lives under water. It is a little insect, it builds a dome-like nest of silk among weeds in ponds and ditches, and fills the nest with air. In that strange house it lives, it keeps its eggs. In autumn it makes another nest at a greater distance below the surface of the water, and, having sealed itself in, it sleeps until spring. Taken out of the water, the spider looks like any other, but as soon as it is put back in the water it is a perfect animal. Its body makes it look like a bit of quill. It is the only spider that has taken to a wholly aquatic life, says the writer—Country Life.

Physician's Startling Discovery

Says People Can Live In Perfect Health Without Stomach

"That the stomach is a superfluous organ is the startling discovery of Dr. Victor Paschot, reported to the Academy of Medicine.

"Affirming that he has successfully removed the stomach from a woman fifty years old who had continued to live happily in perfect health, he reports that the operation also cured her of cancer.

"The stomach's action is purely preliminary," stated Dr. Paschot. "The mechanism for the vital part of the digestion is in the small intestine with the intervention of the pancreatic juices and the bile. Therefore, providing the patient follows a light diet, the stomach can be dispensed with advantage."

Prince Henry To Go In Army

Fond of Sports and Immensely Popular With Public

Prince Henry, the third son of the King and Queen, who attained his majority on March 31, is destined to follow in the footsteps of his father, and to serve somewhere in the background by his older brothers, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York. Prince Henry is immensely popular with the public.

In stature he exceeds his brothers, and is fond of sports and outdoor life. In pursuance of his inclination to be a soldier he went through the army class at Eton and afterward studied at Sandhurst, the English West Point. Last August, the Prince was appointed a second lieutenant of the King's Royal Rifles and at present is attached to the Thirtieth Hussars at Aldershot.

Thieves Were Original

Entered Church Near Lille, France, and Stole Bell

At a time when such a large percentage of French criminals are specializing in thefts of jewelry, pocketbooks, and the more easily portable luxuries of life, it is almost surprising to find of such originality as was shown by the robbers who devoted their attention to stealing a church bell weighing one and a half tons. Recently a considerable force of military engineers entered the ruins of Essars Church, near Lille, France, and succeeded in hauling out a huge bell and placing it upon their lorry. They were surprised in the act by the night watchman, who made an attempt to resist the removal of the bell but was bludgeoned by the bandits, who then fled.

Suitable Jap Alliance Is Quite Feasible

London Papers Say It Is A Fit Subject For Conference.

Declaring that the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese treaty is a good subject for the consideration of the conference of the empire premiers, which will be held in London in June, the London Sunday Express says the Observer and the Sunday Times, publishing editorially arguing the need of effecting a new alliance with Japan which will be satisfactory to both the United States and the dominions.

The Observer, alluding to certain American statements on the subject, says the first anti-American step which might be made under a new Anglo-Japanese treaty would break up the British Empire. None of the dominions would ever consent to support the Mother Country in any action against the United States in the interests of Japan, but, on the contrary, would be bound to actively resist the Japanese.

The Sunday Times, which has no connection with The Daily Times, controlled by Northcliffe, takes a somewhat similar view.

Canada Has More Than 37,000 Square Miles Of Peat

An Annap, peat specialist of the geological survey, informed the dominion government that there was no reason why Canadian peat should not replace coal for heating purposes throughout the country. The survey would relieve the Canadian public of dependence upon United States mines and would release all coal importations for industrial purposes. Peat had proved satisfactory for cooking and open grates and for furnaces during the fall and spring months. So far more than 37,000 square miles of peat bog had been discovered and should be developed. Out ton and a half of peat would give as much heat as a ton of anthracite coal.

The ease with which coal has been secured from the United States militated against development of peat in Canada. Peat could be sold commercially at $9.00 a ton, and if produced in large quantities it would become more favorable to the public. After peat was removed, the excavated area could be drained and used for agricultural purposes.

Little Talk On Life

"Life," said a tailor, "is a piece of suit given to each man to wear in a coat—rich velvet to some, narrow homestead to others. Each must cut his coat according to his cloth, and so he must be wiser in the way he wears his suit. It is long or short, patterned or plain, well-tailored or ill—Westminster Gazette.

Port Norman Oil Find Is Outstanding Event

Officials Issue Warning However Against Mushroom Companies.

"Present indications are," says a statement issued by the department of mines, "that the reported discovery of oil below Port Norman on the MacKenzie River may prove to be one of the outstanding events of the mining industry of Canada."

Officials of the department emphasize, however, that the indiscriminate purchase of stock in many of the mushroom oil companies that are being formed with the avowed purpose of acquiring petroleum claims in the MacKenzie River basin cannot be commended. Prospecting for oil under the best conditions is extremely costly and only trained geologists can properly carry out such work. The haphazard trading of claims for speculative purposes is to be discouraged, and it will likely be found later on that the great majority of these claims, acquired merely in the hope that could be turned over to companies prepared to sink wells, will be left on the hands of the speculators with resultant heavy loss to the unfortunate stock holders.

The James Lougheed, minister of mines, announces publication of a revised edition of the departmental report on the MacKenzie River. Inquiries are being received by the department from all parts of the world.

Radium Is Lost In Mysterious Manner

Authorities at Hospital Decline to Give Any Information.

Radium valued at several hundred pounds, belonging to the Sheffield Infirmary, has disappeared mysteriously.

The authorities at the hospital—a voluntary institution, supported by public subscriptions—decline to give any information beyond the fact that the loss is "due to the unfortunate error of certain people."

The radium is stored and prepared for medical purposes at the University of Sheffield, and has been transferred to the hospital.

A search among the city's shops with a special apparatus is stated to be contemplated.

In 1914, a quantity of radium, worth about £1,000, which had fallen on the floor of a ward in the Royal Infirmary, was recovered from the dust cart. It was located in the cart by Professor Wilberforce, an electroscope. The contents of the dust cart, which was put into the hospital radiological, and the buckets were sent one by one to the professor. The twelve buckets contained the radium.

Engineer in Frozen North Used Dog Sleigh Boards and Elk Hide Goggles.

With a few dog sleigh boards, glue made from raw musk and some crude blacksmith tools, W. A. Johnson, a Hudson's Bay Company steamboat engineer at Fort Simpson in the sub-arctic, constructed propellers with which one of the two all-terrain Oil Company sailships recently returned from Simpson to Peace River. The story is told in the Beaver Magazine of the Hudson's Bay Company. The day to day work of the propellers by the propellers broke their propellers at Simpson last month on their way to the Fort Norman fields and lost for the emergency repairs made by Mr. Johnson both of the machines would have been stranded until the opening of navigation on Slave Lake, about July 1.

The Idle Young

Large Number Are Unemployed in United Kingdom.

An attempt is to be made to mitigate the grave danger attending the presence of the large numbers of unemployed juveniles who throng London's streets. At present 107,000 of these "young persons" are registered as unemployed in the United Kingdom.

The Minister of Labor has issued regulations by which attendance at approved courses of instruction may be made a condition for the receipt of unemployment benefit.

British Coolness Will Right Troubles

Among the passengers arriving on the Canadian Pacific steamer Metagama, were Sir George and Lady Park. Alluding to the present conditions in Great Britain, Sir George expressed his opinion that there was no cause for alarm, but that the national confidence of character and stability of temperament might be relied upon to right all the troubles that surround the nation at present.

Plans for the Winnipeg report development of the oilfields of Northwest. Alluding to the present conditions in the oil fields of the north, the crown were revealed by D. N. Finlay, Winnipeg, who announced that his brother, Oswald Sterling Finlay, had been appointed to the position of administrator of the territory, a post that virtually amounts to a governorship of that wide area.

"There is a steadily growing demand for fat Canadian cattle in the English market, despite the embargo on the fact that it costs approximately $100 to ship a steer from Western Canada to England and pay for its slaughter within 90 days of loading."

This statement was made by John Burns, general manager of the P. Burns Company, Ltd. In speaking of the English market, Mr. Burns said that for the past twelve years there had been no demand. "Now, in spite of the very high freight rates, both from here to the seaboard and across the Atlantic, despite the fact that Canadian cattle arriving in England are sold for immediate slaughter, this market was developing and the demand exists."

There is actually a shortage of fat cattle in Western Canada, at the present time to take advantage of this opportunity," said Mr. Burns.

Within the last few years the market about the English coast in the west have been undergoing a great change. This has been brought about by the transition from the period of the big slaughter to the conditions of today. The country is now more thickly settled and individuals hold smaller acreage. Not many years ago the big Western Canadian farms by the thousands. Under such conditions it was natural that the marketing would naturally place one side of the market. In the great bulk of stock were sold to the packers in the months of September, October and November. It is evident, even to the layman, that this produced an unhealthy market condition. It meant that the packers stood up with stock at one end of the year, and finished time during the other nine months. A glutted market and a fall in prices were almost a foregone conclusion.

But with the settling of the country the big cattle ranches have gradually disappeared. More intensive cultivation is being followed by the big ranches. For even smaller farms, gradually the market is being fed by a steady marketing of cattle. This is the greater part of the year. This will mean less fluctuation in prices and better conditions for the farmer, packer and consumer.

The man who held on to breeding stock, Mr. Burns said, found himself in the best position eventually. Previous to the war he had been content to let his market rackled in this order: Irish, Danish, Canadian, American. At the present time there is almost an equal demand for Irish and Canadian cattle. Little Danish breeds is coming in and the American product has lost much of its reputation owing to carelessness in raising the stock.

Although live shipments are being made to England at present and are being shipped at of some profit, conditions are far from favorable. In approximate figures, it costs $20 to ship an animal from Calgary to the seaboard, $60 for ocean freight, and $10 for slaughtering and other charges on arrival. Rates like these make it unwise to ship anything but the very best finished cuts. Stockmen are therefore holding their cattle up at least some of the weight lost in the train journey and during the sea passage.

The man who held on to breeding stock, Mr. Burns said, found himself in the best position eventually. Previous to the war he had been content to let his market rackled in this order: Irish, Danish, Canadian, American. At the present time there is almost an equal demand for Irish and Canadian cattle. Little Danish breeds is coming in and the American product has lost much of its reputation owing to carelessness in raising the stock.

Although live shipments are being made to England at present and are being shipped at of some profit, conditions are far from favorable. In approximate figures, it costs $20 to ship an animal from Calgary to the seaboard, $60 for ocean freight, and $10 for slaughtering and other charges on arrival. Rates like these make it unwise to ship anything but the very best finished cuts. Stockmen are therefore holding their cattle up at least some of the weight lost in the train journey and during the sea passage.

"There is a steadily growing demand for fat Canadian cattle in the English market, despite the embargo on the fact that it costs approximately $100 to ship a steer from Western Canada to England and pay for its slaughter within 90 days of loading."

This statement was made by John Burns, general manager of the P. Burns Company, Ltd. In speaking of the English market, Mr. Burns said that for the past twelve years there had been no demand. "Now, in spite of the very high freight rates, both from here to the seaboard and across the Atlantic, despite the fact that Canadian cattle arriving in England are sold for immediate slaughter, this market was developing and the demand exists."

There is actually a shortage of fat cattle in Western Canada, at the present time to take advantage of this opportunity," said Mr. Burns.

Within the last few years the market about the English coast in the west have been undergoing a great change. This has been brought about by the transition from the period of the big slaughter to the conditions of today. The country is now more thickly settled and individuals hold smaller acreage. Not many years ago the big Western Canadian farms by the thousands. Under such conditions it was natural that the marketing would naturally place one side of the market. In the great bulk of stock were sold to the packers in the months of September, October and November. It is evident, even to the layman, that this produced an unhealthy market condition. It meant that the packers stood up with stock at one end of the year, and finished time during the other nine months. A glutted market and a fall in prices were almost a foregone conclusion.

But with the settling of the country the big cattle ranches have gradually disappeared. More intensive cultivation is being followed by the big ranches. For even smaller farms, gradually the market is being fed by a steady marketing of cattle. This is the greater part of the year. This will mean less fluctuation in prices and better conditions for the farmer, packer and consumer.

The Lamp In The Window

By Frank Wall

It was just a little cottage, standing in a corner of what had once been old John Humphrey's farm. John Humphrey was dead, and the house had been merged long ago to the magnificent grounds of the house built by some unknown millionaire on the crest of the hill.

There were all kinds of rumors about that house, but the only facts were that no one had lived there for years and no one had heard his name. The house, a palace in white with broad terraces and smooth sloping lawns, was exquisitely beautiful, but only the caretaker and the scrub-woman enjoyed its perfection. Day by day and year by year it stood there, drawing in the warm sunshine, and at night the moon played quietly about its white walls and cast long dancing shadows across the lawns, and that was the only sign of life there for almost twenty years.

The little cottage stood near the road and was occupied by old John Humphrey's son. He kept himself aloof from his neighbors and was not very popular. They said he had no social ability, no human feelings, and perhaps they were right. Ordinarily his face was like a mask, but when sunset came and he placed his little lamp in the window overlooking the road, it softened into an extraordinary tenderness. All the neighbors could have seen him then, they might have changed their opinion of him.

And this had gone on for nearly twenty years. Every night he lighted the little lamp and when he had lighted it he sat by the window watching and watching and watching for someone who never came.

Sometimes there were noisy parties who had motored down from New York, which was only fifty miles away, and they would come and ask for something to eat. He gave them the best he had, and then he would go back to his corner and stare down the moonbeams.

One night a furious storm broke over that part of the country. The rain came down in torrents and the cold flashes of lightning made the big house on the hill appear even more impressive and beautiful. After he had lighted his little lamp, he stood watching the storm, and while he was so occupied that he saw an automobile pulling painfully up the steep slope of the hill. It came to a standstill opposite the cottage and half a dozen people alighted and hurried up the little path.

They were all young except one, a very beautiful woman of about forty years of age. The others addressed her as Madame Leslie, and the cottage, sitting quietly in its corner, recalled her name as that of a great stranger who, after years of struggle, had recently taken New York by storm.

They were all artists of one kind or another, full of wild spirit, mocking every convention; and the one they called Madame Leslie was the wildest of them all. Yet there was this difference: that her wildness seemed to be forced. It was as though it struggled all the time with some deeper feeling, as though some secret floor of her heart had been touched and she wished to hide it.

"Let us ask Madame Leslie," cried one in the midst of a furious argument and the singer turned and said: "Jack Mountford says that if he were married he would sacrifice even his wife's happiness to his art, if need be, that art is supreme."

"And you, Helen?"

The girl laughed vivaciously and yet with an undercurrent of sadness. "I don't know," she murmured, "I want to be famous but I want to be happy too. It is not possible to be both, Madame."

The singer was staring at a photograph that stood on a side-table. It was a girl of perhaps twenty-three or twenty-four years of age, dressed in some cheap material, obviously village-made, but not scarcely noticed for the transfiguring happiness that shone in her face.

"Do you see that girl?" she said quietly. "Do you notice how plainly she is dressed? And that cheap little wedding ring at which she is staring so intently? That girl isn't famous, and yet she looks happy. And I?" she added, as though speaking to herself, "I am what you call famous, but I am not happy."

The center had left his corner by the window, as though driven by the sadness in the singer's voice. "That is my wife," he said hoarsely. "I lived near here, but the lure of New York crept like a poison into her veins. She thought she could be famous, and she left me. I am the singer still."

"Some day perhaps . . ." said the singer sadly.

"Every night I light my little lamp in the window and wait for her return," said the man passionately. "All ways I hope that she will come back to the time she occupied the east side of the hill after you call me."

Madame Leslie rose suddenly. "We all hope," she said earnestly. "See, I am waiting here for her to come. Who will prepare the car for the journey back?"

The young man of the party stood up at once and the girls followed a moment later. Madame Leslie turned to the cottage. Her eyes were shining. "They told me you had gone abroad," she said.

The man lifted his hands in a gesture of despair. "For twenty years I have waited here," he said. "And now . . . you have come back, and you are famous. This humble little will appear to you less than ever. I want you to see the light, 'that is all I care about. I would have spoken as soon as I saw you, but I was afraid. And for the time you speak of . . . it means nothing to me now."

Her companions were calling her. She went toward the window and took down the little lamp he had tended so faithfully.

"It is for you to decide," he said solemnly. "God knows I want you but there is no bitterness in my heart now. If you decide to go back to the city, I will put out this little light and there is an end of all my hopes."

The others were at the door now, and the man stood by her hand, questioning. "This is how I answer that question, Helen," she said to the girl. "I told my husband twenty years ago I have tasted all that fame can offer and now I come back home. You must go on to New York without me. I have waited here for my home."

"No," cried the man in a ringing voice. "I have something else to say. You tried of me because you said I wasted too much time on the invention I was working on. Well, I justified my ambition as you justified yours." He went across the room, and pulled aside the curtain, showing the big house on the crest of the hill, glorious in the moonlight. "That is the result of my invention," he cried. "That is the home to which you have come back."

A Matter Of Sense.

Cardinal Bourne is quite clear that there can be no complete separation of Ireland and England. He does not believe that the Irish want it. For this is a matter, not of much of sentiment, but of sense. Ireland cannot be without Great Britain, and from the standpoint of national defense it may be said that Great Britain cannot live without Ireland. The sooner that dream disappears the better.—The Argonaut.

A Man's Weight In Gold.

How much is a billion dollars? One billion worth of coin silver would make a cube nearly fifty feet on an edge. If you were worth your weight in silver that would make you rich. The weight of a 160-pound man would be balanced on the scales with $2,500 worth of coin silver. His weight in coin gold would be worth only $40,000.

HAVEN FOR SUMMER

BY LORETTO C. LYNCH
An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

"We are five women who have secured a summer abode where our kids may have a good time and to which our husbands may commute daily. It is close to the seashore. The house, however, is very old, and by putting our funds we were able to purchase it at a low figure. The men will do the necessary repairs, but it is up to the women to provide for furnishings, and for these we have not much money. There are three large rooms on the first floor and two large ones on the second floor. There is an old windmill on the place which, I believe, may be repaired as to provide the water with water. Any suggestions will be appreciated."

When I read this letter I almost missed these fortunate women. It was a letter about the old and the new, and with certain alterations will undoubtedly be most comfortable during the warm days to come. To plan to use one of the large rooms on the first floor as a dining room. Have the men construct a long table and seat in a room with folding chairs. Cover the table with plain white oilcloth. Should you care to use this room for a dancing party the table should be folded up and placed away.

The porch adjoining the front room, which you described in your letter, should be repaired and enlarged and then screened in. It could be used for a family sitting room.

Plan to use one of the rooms on the first floor as a room for reading or study, or, on occasion, a guest bedroom.

The other room will, of course, be the kitchen and laundry combined. Adjoining the kitchen, or, entirely separate from it, have the men construct a bathroom. If the windmill is working well, arrange to have it supply water to this bathroom. A shower might be arranged. Several partitions might be made so that several may don bathing costumes at the same time.

The larger room on the upper floor might be partitioned with curtains, or it may be made into berths, one above the other, still fashion. The larger room will accommodate the women and children and the men might have the other room.

Get the mattresses and springs as expensive. Personally, if I should prefer to have the beds and bedding brought from home by motor, and you say you have not much money to spend on furniture. Most every family has on hand some article of furniture which, when you get to throw away and yet of which they would gladly dispose. Why not have the old four frame look over your household? What matter what the finish may be, sanderpaper it, and use mission brown or gray finish on the furniture. Select one of one or two checked glens are suitable. Avoid, however, white in any form for the summer cottage.

For the wall finish, choose some of the composition boards which we find on the modern market. A cool green finished board of this type and set in a seashore cottage had summer. The furniture was mission brown—made over to this shade—and the bedroom lamp had a shade of soft-toned yellow.

The floor had had its cracks filled with one of the patent fillers on the market and had been stained dark brown and waxed. Here and there was a green grass rug.

It is my suggestion that each lady do the entire housekeeping for the entire day, with the children, perhaps, assisting her in turn on the dish-washing. In this way, each of the five women will have four days rest out of every five.

Fuel From Sawdust

California Has Been Successful In Solving Problem.

A sample of fuel from sawdust has been received in New Westminster by the Board of Trade from Mr. Walter Thomas of Eureka, California. Methods of making fuel from sawdust waste have been experimented with in the New Westminster district for many years, but so far none have evolved that proved to be suitable as a commercial proposition. Apparently the problem has been solved by Mr. Thomas, who is now conducting an establishing a plant in this district, and is equipping as to a site.

Police Force Strengthened

Constable J. Smith, formerly of the detachment at Clyde, left Edmonton for Fort McMurray recently and will take up his post at that point and cooperate with Constable J. B. McDonald who has been stationed at Fort McMurray for the past three or four years. Two men will also be stationed at Lac la Biche, where Constable Constables Moses and McCarthy.

Not the Ireland of History

According to Government Ministers Are Committed by Imported G-men.

The dragging of a woman out of her humble home in the dead of night and shooting her to death, heedless of her pitiful appeals for mercy, and riddling her poor body with bullets until the spot was surely this is not Ireland of history, in whose pages we find chivalry and tenderness and pity and gallant conduct rendered to worthy causes by a high-spirited race, who thrill to what is high and poetic, and find a catch in the throat for all things lovely and exalted.

The Government must be right and the people must be wrong, and for check with shame are committed by gangs of ruffians who have been prime scoundrels for whom the sacredness of human life does not exist and who will kill for wages, without compunction or remorse. It must be so, for it is incredible that any Irishman would commit the heinous crime of murdering a helpless woman, whose appeal for mercy could not be willful by the fiercest savages.

Bulgarian Labor Law

Now In Operation

All classes of Society Have Been Called To Fulfill Service Duties.

All classes of society in Bulgaria have been called upon to fulfill their service duties under the provision of compulsory labor law, which was adopted a year ago. The law provided that men who had attained the age of 20 years and girls who were 16 years old were to be called upon for a certain amount of compulsory labor for the state. Men were to work 12 months and women six months and none was allowed to emigrate until duties imposed had been performed. The number of persons coming within the scope of the law was 700,000, of whom 600,000 have been at work, the labor done comprising road making, sanitary service, digging of canals, street paving and the building of schools and reading rooms.

Lack of Home Training.

There are four hundred boys under twenty years of age in the penitentiaries of Canada, according to General W. S. Hughes, Superintendent of Penitentiaries. General Hughes is undoubtedly right in putting a large share of the blame on the lack of proper training in the home—Orilla Packet.

The National Concern

All Social Progress Is Dependent On Good Health.

Good health is, at least it should be made, a matter of community and national welfare; for much of what we call social progress is dependent on it. It is a worthy of considerable attention that a sum of not less than $700,000 in wages is lost through ill-health each year in the United States alone. On an average we lose something like seven days a year from our working time, and when this is multiplied by the number of workers in this country, the sum total is a staggering figure—large number.—From the Detroit News.

Evidence Of Progress.

To provide for extensions to the government telephone system in the province of Manitoba and to erect new public buildings this year $3,870,000 has been voted by the Provincial Legislature.

Plans for the erection this fall, or early next spring, of the first unit of a brick tile and glazed tile manufacturing plant in Winnipeg are now completed, according to C. L. Thompson, manager of the Mason Engineering Company, of Niagara Falls, Ontario. The first unit will have a capacity of 20,000,000 face brick a year. Deposits of clay used in the manufacture of red buff fine brick are known to exist in close proximity to the city.

It is not the wish of the Post Office Department that local Post Office walls should become an advertising bureau. Certain Departmental Notices are to be posted thereon but it is a recognized fact by the Department that "advertising" distinctly belongs to the publisher's field, and local postmasters will be saved the unpleasantness of a refusal if the public kindly keep this fact in mind.

Mr. Bradner reported it being the worst break he had ever seen and asked the poor animals misery by shooting it. Mr. Anderson did not know the horse was there until Sunday the 15th.
